AMERICAN CULTURES BREADTH REQUIREMENT

Definition

American cultures courses are integrative and comparative in that individual groups are studied in the larger context of American society, history, or culture. The courses address theoretical and analytical issues relevant to understanding race, culture, and ethnicity in American history and society.

Each course takes substantial account of groups drawn from at least three of the following: African Americans, American Indians, Asian Americans, Chicano/Latino Americans, and European Americans. A course used in satisfaction of the American cultures requirement may satisfy other requirements.

Students should consult the Schedule of Classes for a list of American cultures courses offered each semester.
