Subject Headings

BIGOTRY Use TOLERATION

Sometimes instead of searching by keywords, you may have better luck finding materials by consulting the Library of Congress Subject Headings (LCSH). This is important because you can sometimes get better search results. For example, articles, books, and web sites on Bigotry, Tolerance, or Intolerance will usually be indexed under "Toleration." To browse such headings, they are in the five thick red volumes on the reference shelves, on the left side of the reference desk.

Searching the Web

Use Web search engines (such as Google) last for your research, and if you do, be prepared to evaluate web sites with a very skeptical eye. Anybody can put anything on the web, and if you do not pay attention, you could be referring to very questionable or misinformed sites. For example, a student created an otherwise decent page on the literary author, Toni Morrison, but she linked to a web page that purported to be a research site on Martin Luther King that turned out to be a racist web site from a white supremacy group! The Library has an effective web evaluation checklist available at: <http://tinyurl.com/5eaac>. In general, the Library does NOT recommend New Media sources such as Wikipedia and blogs.

Here are places to start on the Web:
